"Manila as a Sixteenth Century Scientific Hub

While this issue warrants further research, it is safe to assume that the proto-scientific collaboration in Manila was extensive, persistent, and included individuals who were also involved in the transplantation of spices and medicinal plants into the Philippines, and from the Archipelago to New Spain. The presence in Manila of experts in mathematics, navigation, and other disciplines, certainly promoted the development of an empirical culture among the colony's elite. Consequently, when conducting experiments and making decisions regarding spice transplantation, officials and friars in the Philippines, their counterparts in New Spain, and experts in the Council of the Indies and the Casa de Contratación collaborated utilizing the same terminology, and employing identical methods."

Dissertation: Transplantation of Asian spices in the Spanish empire 1518-1640: Entrepreneurship, Empiricism, and the Crown

This dissertation focuses on the way in which...

Sonny Alforque Although the recent election in Georgia showed that winning isn't easy for Republicans these days, it also proved that throwing millions at the elections doesn't guarantee votes. Bustos' Marketing 101 strategy is very much the right idea, if it's done with sincerity. Trump employed it pretentiously but won anyway because Dems didn't even seem to want to try it.

Robert R. Mackey I'm wary of waiving the sexism flag from the start. Hollywood is an odd bird when it comes to how much 'stars' get paid. Had she been Julia Roberts post-Pretty Woman, she'd have made piles. Instead, they took a chance with a relatively unknown actor. So, argument can be made either way--inherent sexism (which is there, in droves) or risk management by the bean counters.

Duterte is coming out with the line that the capture of Marawi is not really about religion, but is connected with the drug trade.

In this way he can say I told you so, and also distract from the fact that he is the first Philippine president to lose a city to a terrorist group. Not exactly helpful for his "tough guy" image.

Napping Can Dramatically Increase Learning, Memory, Awareness, And More
Many Europeans believe in the benefits of napping so much that they shut down in the afternoon to allow everyone to take a quick power nap, recharge, and come back to work.

healthspiritbody.com

How Long to Nap

10 to 20 Minutes

This power nap is ideal for a boost in alertness and energy, experts say. This length usually limits you to the lighter stages of non-rapid eye movement (NREM) sleep, making it easier to hit the ground running after waking up.

30 Minutes

Some studies show sleeping this long may cause sleep inertia, a hangover-like groggy feeling that lasts for up to 30 minutes after waking up, before the nap's restorative benefits become apparent.

60 Minutes

This nap is best for improvement in remembering facts and names, includes slow-wave sleep, the deepest type. The downside: some grogginess upon waking up.

90 Minutes

This is a full cycle of sleep, meaning the lighter and deeper stages, including REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, typically likened to the dreaming stage. This leads to improved emotional and procedural memory (i.e. riding a bike, playing the piano) and creativity; nap of this length typically avoids sleep inertia, making it easier to wake up.

Move LA "You need to treat your role as a proving ground for durability, reliability, costs and other factors for the heavy-duty vehicle industry generally, not just for your fleet or for buses," said Denny Zane, the executive director of the public transit advocacy group MoveLA. "This is a much a bigger issue for you to ponder."

Metro wants to switch to all-electric buses by 2030

The move will cut greenhouse gas and smog-forming emissions, but agency staff say following through depends on whether the technology is ready.

'From June 5-9, the United Nations will take on the challenge when it hosts its first Ocean Conference at the U.N. Headquarters in New York City—a global gathering focused on protecting the ocean resources so vital to human survival.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium will play a significant role in the conference, advocating for policies to reduce single-use plastic, new commitments that promote sustainable international fisheries, and concerted action to tackle ocean acidification and other impacts of climate change.'

We're a voice for the sea at the first-ever United Nations Ocean Conference

The ocean produces half the oxygen we breathe, regulates climate by absorbing atmospheric carbon, and is the primary source of protein for 3.5 billion people....

John Chiang might benefit from some Hollywood supporters, he's from SoCal, to add some excitement to his campaign.

NoCal is generally better politically organized, but CA in general goes for celebrities (look at what Arnold did). 🙄

Okay, Corbyn is a bit left for the U.S., but even Thatcher was kinda equivalent to Bernie Sanders in many areas of social policy.

Jeremy Corbyn fills the banks of the Tyne - Theresa May can't even pack a small room

Thousands of people turned out in the rain to watch Jeremy Corbyn speak tonight in Gateshead after Theresa May struggled to fill a room on the Conservative campaign...

Sue Merriman Is he really? To me he's just a little left of the centre. I like Bernie Sanders but couldn't stand Thatcher. Are they really similar?

They need an Airbnb for the poor. A service that will arrange sharing, pooling together resources and locating the lowest prices in any area.

Many of the homeless are full-time workers.

Frank Galarrita LA has a ratio of 1:3000, meaning 1 of every 3000 are homeless while New York has only 1:287, that is really pathetic yet California is a sanctuary of illegals and defying the order of Trump.

Hmmmm... In 2009, Trump & his kids signed this letter to Obama and Congress before UN conference on climate change: "If we fail to act now, it is scientifically irrefutable that there will be catastrophic and irreversible consequences for humanity and our planet."

A top Senate Democrat reminded Trump that he once urged Obama to act on climate change

Sen. Tom Carper didn't waste an opportunity to remind Trump of his apparent change of heart on the environment.
